SOCIALISM IS EXPOSED BY P. W. COLLINS

Not of, by or for the Workers, the Speaker Declares and by the workers. But Socialism could not and does not come from the working people. The working man is inherently spiritualistic, religious and loves God, his Creator. Christ himself was a workman as was his foster father, St. Joseph.

"Where does Socialism come from? It is not of the workers, Karl Marx, the founder of Socialism and the author of 'Capital,' often referred to as the bible of Socialism, was not of the workers. Fred Engels was not of the workers. LaSalle was not a working man. Liebknecht, Bernstein, Krounsky, Bax, Blatchford, Quaker, LaFargue, Dudley, Vandeveld, Janara, Guesde, Ferri and a score of other recognized leaders and authorities had nothing in common with the working people. Therefore Socialism is not a doctrine from the working people, and does not express their hopes and aspirations.

"Socialism is the greatest enemy to the advance and progress of the working people of all the enemies in the history of civilization. Ninety per cent of those who espouse the cause of Socialism do not understand what Socialism means. Place twelve Socialists in a room and ask them what Socialism means. No two will answer alike.

"There is only one kind of Socialism—International Socialism—but there are over one hundred kinds of Socialists.

"Bax, the great authority on Socialism, declared 'Christ was a half-mystical figure of the first century.'

"Robert Baxford, the author of 'God and My Neighbor,' shows plainly the Socialism standpoint on religion when he declares, 'The God of peace and love sounds very nice, but it is open to one serious objection, there is no God.'

"Karl Marx, founder of Socialism and the author of the Socialistic bible, declared 'Religion is a gigantic degradation of human nature.'

"So with hundreds of Socialistic authorities is the teaching of atheism made unmistakable.

"By denying God, religion and the sacredness of marriage, Socialism holds out nothing this side of the grave or nothing on the other side of the grave.

"It takes out of the hearts of men the inherent love of God that can only make them good citizens.

Not an Economic Movement.

"Socialism is not an economic movement.

X-RAY CLUB ENDS SEASON.

Splendid Program is Rendered at Annual Dinner Last Night.

The X-Ray club brought its spring season to a close at a well attended gathering and dinner in the Y. M. C. A. lecture room last evening. Practically all of the members of the club were present and the program was one of distinct novelty. Henry Hochner, president of the club presided as "toastmaster" and did the "roasting" of a Queen's taste, also calling upon each member of the club to "toast" his nearest neighbor at the banquet board. Considerable space was injected into the "roasting" and the finished product just about suited the tastes of the members if the expression heard today may be taken as any indication.

Y. M. C. A. Camp Equipment.

John Johnston, physical director of the Calumet Y. M. C. A. has returned from Eagle Harbor, where he inspected the camp equipment at the Y. M. C. A. camp grounds at Grand Marais. The grounds were put in shape for the season and Mr. Johnston will recommend that additional dining room facilities be provided and that other conveniences be added.

It is probable there will be two sections of Y. M. C. A. campers this year, one long camp for the younger boys and a shorter camp for the older members of the association.

LETTER IN BOTTLE TELLS OF THE FATE OF THE STEAMER H. B. SMITH.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 4.—From a crumpled piece of paper daubed with grease spots can be worked out the story of the fate of the steamer Henry B. Smith, which left Marquette, Mich. in the terrific storm of last November and never was heard from again.

The paper was picked up in a bottle by surfmen at the Vermilion life saving station as they patrolled the beach near Vermilion Point. It reads as follows:

"Sunday morning—To the Hawgood company, Cleveland—(Pinder please forward): The Henry B. Smith broke in two opposite No. 5 hatch about 12 miles east of Marquette. We are having an awful time. (Signed) Oliver."

Not a person was saved and only one body was ever found, that of the chief engineer, which was washed ashore on the Canadian side.

VANITIE LOSES RACE TODAY.

New York, June 4.—The sloop Vanitie was forced to retire from today's contest for the selection of a cup defender when she lost two men overboard and the Resolute won the contest. Both men who were lost were picked up. The Resolute has won two and the Vanitie one race.

ment, although its claim to be such is pointed out in Karl Marx's 'Capital' when he says: 'Labor is the source of all wealth and culture.' This is not true. Labor, capital, land, invention, genius and ingenuity, all combined, are the sources of economic wealth.

"Socialism stands today absolutely and positively without an economic basis. It is left only with the 'materialistic conception of history' in the language of the university.

"It has more people dreaming today than ever dreamed in all the ages of history.

"When the laws of God are instilled in the hearts and souls of men, there will be no need for any other cure for the evils of society. 'Unless the Lord build a house they labor in vain who build it.' No true progress can be made without righteousness, justice and equality. The ten commandments which God handed down to Moses from Mount Sinai must be reaffirmed. As the ten commandments and the gospel have been the beacon lights of civilization, they will still be doing business at the same old stand when the green grass is growing over the grave of Socialism.

"Why should Socialism stand against the family? The family is the unit of society, the cornerstone of civilization. Socialism can hope to make headway only when the family is destroyed. Practically a Socialistic authority says, 'The family will vanish as a matter of course. Only the middle classes are living in the state of the family. The working people are living in a state of public prostitution.' Because the family is a divine institution, Socialism demands that it be torn down.

"Most Socialists think Socialism stands for government ownership, for social reform and that it has something to do with the labor movement. This is not true.

"Socialism is the greatest enemy of the workmen and the organized labor movement. The labor movement is formed on the principles of Christ, righteousness, equality and justice. The trade agreement means an agreement between capital and labor in which the rights of both are recognized and seeks a harmonious understanding of questions of mutual interest.

"Socialism does not make a follow-up of a contented man.

Government Ownership.

"Government ownership is not Socialism. Most of the countries of Europe have government ownership. We have government ownership of the postoffice and police department.

Government ownership means the operation by the government of public business, when the safety and interests of the people require it. Although government ownership is in the platform of the Socialists party, it is there only to attract followers.

"Socialism makes an appeal against private ownership, declares for a collective ownership of all property. Private ownership is a natural right. Collective ownership means a violation of the commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal.'

"The minimum wage is not a principle of Socialism. It is a principle of the labor movement and is based on the great Christian principle that the labor is worthy of its hire." Still Socialists try to influence those who belong to the labor movement by suggesting the minimum wage. It is used by the Socialists as a pick axe to tear down the established principles of society.

"So with the declaration against child labor, Socialism has never taken a single child out of the factory and placed it in school.

"Socialism has never put a single penny in the pay envelope of the working man, but a great many have been taken out to carry on the plans of the Socialists.

Reform Not Socialism.

"Social reform does not mean socialism. Social reform means a great body of society united in the work of a Christian democracy, building up instead of tearing down.

"Socialists tell us there is a 'class struggle.' They declare that the working man hates and despises his employer from the time he goes to work for him until he ceases to work for him. This is not true.

"There is no such thing as 'class struggle' except that inspired by the selfish orator. Outside of the 'class struggle' organized and manufactured by the Socialists, there is no such a thing.

"The selfish orator's aim is to arouse bitterness and illegitimate hatred and discontent in the hearts of the working men."

He cited the following typical example of selfish methods:

"You were slave! See that great building over there. You built that, but do you own it? No, someone else owns it."

"He forgets to tell his hearers that labor would not have been on the job to build the building, if labor had not been paid for being there."

"It is this constant drip, drip, drip of the selfish orator's argument to arouse bitterness and hatred that makes the working man a menace to society."

"A Socialist who knows what Socialism really is, could no more be a labor union man than a Christian, who knows what Socialism is could be a Socialist. Socialism stands for the destruction of society. Labor stands for the building up of society."

Unjust Strikes.

"Most of the unjust strikes are brought about by the Socialists in the labor union and are brought for the sole purpose of tearing down the labor union that Socialism may be built up instead. The Socialists go to poorly attended meetings, work to provoke discontent and to bring about strikes. They know that the strikes will be lost, that behind them will come discontent with trade unionism and that is where Socialism gets its followers. The labor movement stands as a barrier to the progress of Socialism and therefore the Socialists would tear down the labor movement. There can be no alliance between Socialism and Labor."

Mr. Collins credited Eugene V. Debs, several times candidate for president of the Socialist party as the organizer and leading spirit of such organizations as the "I. W. W." (I won't work) and others whom he classed as the scavengers, whose sole purpose is to tear down the labor movement."

Mr. Collins quoted Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L. as saying, 'Some Socialists are members of trade unions, but in no sense are they trade unionists. Their aim is to substitute bitter class war for trade agreements.'

"The conflict of the future will not be between capital and labor, it will be between labor and Socialism. Labor recognizes the rights of capital and capital recognizes the rights of labor. There can be no serious misunderstanding. It is simply a question of setting together and adjusting differences on the basis of righteousness, justice and equality.

"Social reformers recognize that labor does not have to tear down capital to gain what is right any more than capital needs to tear down labor to gain justice.

"We as American citizens, irrespective of our calling, no matter what our nature, station or creed, can work together for the advance and progress of society and civilization on a platform of just two planks, love of God and love of country."

"There is no more room in any part of this broad land of 3,600,000 square miles for the man who preaches treason and arouses bitterness from the soapbox, than for any man who preaches bigotry."

"Socialism is arrayed against God, the country, the family, the home and the working man."

"The coming conflict, therefore, will not be between capital and labor, but between Socialism and Labor, and Labor will give Socialism the trimming of its life."

The meeting was presided over by Theodore Hennes of Lake Linden.

At the close of the lecture, Mr. Collins extended a cordial invitation to Socialists present to ask questions, assuring them he would treat such questions in the most courteous manner possible. None were asked.

Someone ventures the question: 'What chance has Jim Fisher?' Although taken somewhat by surprise by the unusual question, he not being familiar with local political situations, Mr. Collins happily answered that he would have to go to the scriptures for an answer, remarking that he did not know Mr. Fisher, but that inasmuch as Christ referred to 'fishers of men' he presumed that if there were a Fisher present, he might hope to be fairly successful.

MEMORIAL TO CONFEDERATE DEAD IS UNVEILED TODAY

and conspicuous memorials in the famous cemetery, where stand scores of simple shafts and towering monuments put up in honor of the soldier dead, where Revolutionary veterans lie under the same trees that shelter their descendants killed in the Philippine Islands, where sailors who served on the Constitution steeped by side with the victims of the Maine, and where such famous wearers of the gray as Gen. Joseph Wheeler lie, buried within sight of the last resting places of such equally famous wearers of the blue as Sheridan, Crook and Schofield.

Erected at cost of $50,000.

The Confederate memorial was erected at a cost of $50,000, the greater part of which was raised through the efforts of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It was designed by the American sculptor, Sir Moses Ezekiel, himself a Southerner who served in the Confederate army and in later years the designer of monuments to the famous leaders of the "Lost Cause," that adorn public grounds and buildings in Richmond, Louisville and a number of other cities of the South. The sculptor, who has long resided in Italy, came over especially to attend the unveiling of the Arlington memorial and was an honored guest at today's ceremonies.

The monument, which is entirely of bronze, has thirty-two life-sized figures in full relief around a cylindrical base, on which stands the chief figure, a heroic-sized woman, eight feet extended, holding a laurel wreath, with the left resting upon a plow stock, on which is a sickle, and underneath a quotation from Isaiah: "They have bent their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks."

The base of the monument is of bronze, with patina on the sides, which gives bolder relief to the life-sized statues. In addition to the statues there are bronze shields representing the states of the Confederacy and several bronze tablets bearing suitable inscriptions.

BANKERS AND BROKERS.

Boston, Mass., June 4.—Yesterday's rally was followed by dullness today. At times, stocks showed a disposition to sag but renewed buying came in and Union, Steel and Amalgamated showed considerable strength. Interest in local market was in Shoe Machinery, advancing to 61 1/4. United Fruit was also strong, Granby was in good demand around 8 1/4 and closed 8 1/2 bid. The metal market is so dull that there is nothing to inspire speculation in the copper, but investment buying is going on constantly and floating supply at this level should be easily taken care of.
